Spreading the love

Antioch resident Teres Lambert had her book "Mommy, Do You Love Me?" published March of this year. Lambert's book was featured on the popular daytime talk show "The View."

Antioch author's book about parents' love

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - For Teres Lambert, knowing you are loved is one of the most important things. That's why she wrote the book "Mommy, Do You Love Me?"

The book is from the perspective of a mother and a child kangaroo.

"I love kangaroos," Lambert said.

Lambert, of Antioch, said she picked the perspective of an animal because then the story is timeless and boys and girls can relate to the character.

Lambert's idea for the book comes from her experience with marriage and family therapy. She is one semester shy of a master's degree in the marriage and family field, but during meetings with clients she noticed a common theme.

"They didn't think they were lovable," Lambert said.

From what Lambert had learned in her classes, she realized how important feeling loved is.

"Knowing you are loved is key to confidence, self assurance, everything," she said. "And if you are loved and you know it, you can do more. You believe in yourself more."

Figuring out how to portray this message in a book must have been easy for Lambert because it took her only one and one half to two hours to write it, she said.

But the book sat in her computer for five years before it was published by PublishAmerica in March of this year.

Lambert's source of inspiration wasn't too far from home.

"I just went through the simple things as I watched my daughter with her little ones, the things she'll do with them," Lambert said. "And I look back on the things I did with my kids that said I love you without saying those words."

That is one of the reasons Lambert dedicated the book to her two granddaughters, Sloan and Skylar.

"Watching my daughter interact with her kids makes me cry," Lambert said. "She is such a beautiful, beautiful mother."

But writing isn't anything foreign to Lambert. When she started out in her professional career, she was a journalist.

Oh, for the love of the English language

Newspapers are in many ways the guardians of language.

And I'm not saying this as a newspaper employee or as a defender of journalism. This comes from the readers, who many times are the first to point out an error of language that has found its way inside one of our stories or headlines.

Our readers expect us to hold ourselves to the highest standards of spelling and grammar, and while we might falter from time to time, I for one am thankful for being held to such a lofty goal.

During my vacation two weeks ago, I had plenty of time to bone up on my knowledge of grammar and spelling. (In journalism, you never truly get away from work.)

Joe
Grace

While on the plane back to Chicago, I finished James Essinger's "Spellbound: The Surprising Origins and Astonishing Secrets of English Spelling," and I'm in the middle of

Bill Bryson's "The Mother Tongue: English & How It Got That Way."

Who knew English came from such an interesting background? It's essentially a mixture of German, Viking, French and Latin. Talk about your melting pot.

And this also is the reason why our spelling can be so confusing, why we have deceit and receipt or fancy and phantom.

It's also amazing to me how one person could have such an effect on our language, especially grammar.

Split infinitives, those evil splitting of the verbs that create a grammatical bomb, aren't truly as hated as we believe. One crazy English bloke who hated split infinitives ruined it for the rest of us, while most of his peers didn't see a problem with them and thought he was a bit bonkers.

The same goes for using a preposition at the end of a sentence and other grammar no-nos that never have made the most sense because they go directly against how we speak. But rules are rules, and it's our job to follow them. And you can help. See a mistake? Let us know. The English language will thank you.

Book featured on daily talk show 'The View'

She has a bachelor's and a master's degree in journalism and mass communication from Kansas State University. She also has a bachelor's degree in education from Kansas State University.

Lambert said her education and experiences have made her an observer of people, which helped when she decided to write "Mommy, Do You Love Me?"

And she must have done something right, because the book was gaining praise on the popular daily show "The View."

"I didn't even know it was on," Lambert said.

Get a copy

To buy a copy of "Mommy, Do You Love Me?" by Teres Lambert, visit www.mommydoyoulove.com. The book costs $19.95, but can be bought for $22.95 if signed by either Lambert or illustrator Cindy Coleman. The book also is available for $24.95 with a written message from Lambert.

Her mother-in-law was the one who alerted her, and she told Lambert that Elisabeth Hasselbeck and Whoopi

Goldberg were arguing over who got to take it home.

"I've been very, very blessed," Lambert said about the whole experience.

But as blessed as Lambert feels, she still doesn't forget the reason why she wrote the book.

"I want every kid to know that they're loved, just every kid," Lambert said. "Whether they hear the words from their parents or don't, every kid needs to know that he or she is loved and loved unconditionally."

Lambert is not sure whether she will write another book. At this point, she is just seeing where this one takes her.

"This is just a fun thing I did," she said.

Antioch resident receives certification

ANTIOCH - Paula Eastman of Antioch recently achieved "ACTHA Certified Leader" status from the Association of Condominium, Townhouse and Homeowners Associations, a relatively new program for owners in community associations. This six course program covers aspects in community association living: governance, administration, meetings/elections, finances, building operations and insurance.

The aim is to provide a well-rounded knowledge base, a solid foundation in the fundamentals of the multiple disciplines and the skills and tools for leadership related to community association living.

"Whether on the board or not, individuals with an understanding of community associations, need to know the legal and financial aspects," said Beth Lloyd, ACTHA president in a release. "They also need to know the importance of communication and how to communicate. This, in turn, will lead to a stronger association for everyone residing there and lead to the most amicable environment possible - which is what community living is all about."

ACTHA is the largest statewide organization representing community association owners. Its mission is to provide education and information to help associations run more efficiently and effectively. ACTHA will conduct this program again in the fall.

For program details and registration information, call 312-987-1906 or go online www.actha.org

Residents keep showing they care

Antioch fundraiser to collect money, items for soldiers' care packages

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — Debra Rentner is at it again. But this time she has some new faces and a radio station helping her out.

Rentner, who started Operation Hero Care Package, has partnered with Mark Kartheiser for a fundraiser to help collect items and funds to send care packages to soldiers in other countries.

The fundraiser will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 24, at the Antioch Veterans of Foreign Wars, 75 North Ave.

Kartheiser contacted Rentner after reading about Operation Hero Care Package in the Lake County Journals ForeFronts section, which honors people in the community for their service.

"It kind of inspired him to do something," Rentner said.

To get a hold of Rentner, Kartheiser contacted the VFW and that got the ball rolling on this project.

Check it out

What: Soldier care-package drive
When: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 24
Where: Antioch VFW, 75 North Ave.

"He's the one ... he decided he wanted to do something also," Rentner said.

One of Kartheiser's ideas was to get the radio station 95 WILL involved.

Stuart Wattles, WILL's promotions director, said the station wanted to be a part of increasing the media coverage about the soldiers.

"We thought it would be a good way to raise awareness," Wattles said.

WILL has been visiting various establishments in the McHenry and Lake county areas to help increase this awareness.

"We're culminating it with the Antioch VFW," he said.

John Perry, operations manager/program director, will be on hand for the event, Wattles said. Four local bands will perform during the fundraiser.

The bands are Tony and the Effects, Bellevue Suite, Martin Sunde, and Tafoya's Lost Boyzz.

The event also will have raffle items, which include autographed items from the White Sox' Bobby Jenks, the Bears' Devin Hester and Brian Urlacher, former Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre, and former Cubs third baseman Ron Santo.

A bike run also will take place, starting at 11 a.m.

The following are some of the items that will be accepted at the fundraiser: soap, shampoo, conditioner, foot powder, toothpaste, toothbrushes, phone cards, music CDs, movie DVDs, shaving cream, sunscreen, black duct tape and much more.

For a full list of items, visit www.95willrock.com and click on the road trips icon.

Get your caps, gowns ready

As we inch toward the end of May, it looks like we inch toward something else. That's right graduation.

That time of year when the seniors get to celebrate all the hard work they put into the school the last four years. And now they get to move on to bigger, better things. Whether it be college or full-time employment, the students will move on to a world that is foreign to them.

It seems scary for me to think about the fact that my high school graduation was seven years ago. So much has changed since then, and I'm sure this year's graduating class will say the same thing seven years from now. They will go from hearing the stories, to telling the stories about the good ol' days.

But until that time comes, let our Antioch Community High School graduates enjoy what they've accomplished. And on Wednesday, May 28, those graduates will get to do just that, in those potato sacks we like to call graduation gowns.

Graduation isn't the only to celebrate at Antioch Community High School. Earlier this month, four ecology students from an environmental science class won awards at the Fairfield Challenge at the Chicago Botanic Garden. Schools in attendance were from Lake and Cook counties, and students competed in 10 different categories.

Svetlana Peykova won for her photo essay of Antioch, but she wasn't the only one getting praise. Victoria Loffredo, Joe Keeling and Kim Zogran were named finalist for their 2D designs of a green classroom.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town," e-mail Jessica Jacobsen at jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com.

Mailbox Improvement Week taking place now

ANTIOCH — The U.S. Postal Service is asking all Antioch homeowners to inspect and repair their mailboxes during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 19-25, said Shelia McNally, officer-in-charge.

The postal service makes this annual request because of wear and tear that occurs on mailboxes every year.

The following are some repairs that might need to be done: replacing loose hinges on the mailbox door; repainting a mailbox that might be rusted or is peeling; remounting a mailbox post if loosened; and replacing or adding house numbers.

McNally said when installing a new mailbox, residents must use postal service-approved traditional, contemporary or locking full/limited service mailboxes.

Any custom-made mailboxes should be approved with McNally's office to ensure it conforms to the guidelines, McNally said.

The Mass will be said according to the Tridentine rite. In this rite, the Mass is celebrated entirely in Latin, as it was before the use of the vernacular and the Second Vatican Council. Everyone is invited to attend.

Weekend Masses are 4 and 6 p.m. Saturdays and 7, 9 and 11 a.m. Sundays. For more information, call the church office at 847-395-FISH (3474).

A Sequoit celebration

ANTIOCH - On Saturday, May 31, Antioch Community High School invites the entire community to Sequoit Summer, a day-long celebration of the opening of McMillen Field. Sequoit Summer will offer an exciting assortment of activities for all members of the family.

The U.S. Army is bringing a rock climbing wall and inflatable GI Johnny. Kids can have their faces painted by Art Club, or play on the Moonwalk and obstacle course sponsored by Dodge of Antioch.

Many athletic events are scheduled throughout the day: 5K run, dance clinic, golf and tennis lessons, and competitions in basketball, soccer, volleyball, football, and softball. Country singer Jamie Buckley, Voodoo Cadillac, and The August will perform throughout the day. The Math Team will sell concessions, donated by Wal-Mart, to raise money for calculators for all students in the school.

McMillen Field, located off Route 173 east of the football stadium, features many new state-of-the-art soccer, baseball, and softball fields. The fields themselves were recovered from a closed landfill.

More information about the event can be found on the school's website, www.sequoits.com, or by calling or e-mailing Principal Mike Nekritz.

Rescue squad reaches out

Lake Villa fundraiser will help buy new heart monitor

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

LAKE VILLA - The Lake Villa Rescue Squad is looking to improve its urgent care.

The squad recently received a grant to buy four heat monitors, but the squad is one short of having monitors in each ambulance.

Chief J.R. Halek said the ZOLL 12-lead heart monitor will allow rescue squad members to look at a patient's heart at many different angles.

In order to get the fifth monitor, the rescue squad will host a fundraiser from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 24. The fundraiser is at the Lake Villa Rescue Squad, 910 E. Grand Ave.

Halek said the rescue squad has sent out raffle tickets to residents. Residents can buy a raffle ticket for $5 or five for $20. Residents then can mail the bought tickets to the rescue squad and the winners will be announced at the fundraiser. "Our mailboxes were full and more keep coming," Halek said about the raffle tickets.

A 12-lead heart monitor costs $24,000, Halek said, but the rescue squad is hopeful it will be able to raise the funds to buy the fifth monitor.

"The community has been very responsive," he said.

By having the monitors, Halek said, rescue squad members will be able to detect problems and let doctors know.

Halek also said the Lake Villa Rescue Squad is the first rescue squad in Lake County to have the 12-lead heart monitor. These monitors replace the ones the rescue squad has had for about the last eight to nine years, he said.

Lindenhurst aquatic center plans on hold

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

After discussions at the May 13 regular meeting of the Lindenhurst Park District Board of Commissioners, the board and staff decided to postpone its decisions concerning a proposed aquatic facility as discussed over the years. The board's decision was based on the current economic conditions and its impact on the Lindenhurst Park District's property tax payers. At this time, asking residents to approve a property tax increase to 100 percent fund any type of aquatic facility does not make sense, the board said in a press release.

The decision as to whether or not to actively pursue seeking a property tax increase through a referendum to fund an aquatic center will be revisited after the economic conditions improve and the full impact of the large, commercial/residential Village Green complex on the property tax rolls can be ascertained.

In the meantime, the board continues to actively pursue partnerships with other interested entities and keep the public informed as that discuss options and interest in a public aquatic facility.

This will be done through the Lindenhurst Park District website www.lindenhurst-parks.org at About Us, and media.

Cats own you

I knew this day would come.
If you're a cat-owner - or if you've ever met a cat - you know this simple truth: Humans do not own cats; cats own humans.
I now have conclusive proof.
And frankly, I'm afraid they're organizing a coup.
Last week, I was doing my hair when the bathroom doorknob rattled.
I looked for a weapon to wield at the intruder just as the door swung open to reveal ... wait for it ... my cats.
They looked as surprised as I.
They are smart, yes. But these are the same two cats who will sniff the end of my finger when I point at a squirrel in the yard. These are the same two cats who think I won't notice them if they stand very still on the forbidden kitchen counter. Opening a door is like splitting the atom.
Of course, being cats, they totally blew off the whole incident. After the initial shock dissipated, they sauntered out of the bathroom. "As you were."
So, maybe it's just a ruse.
But I have a terrible feeling this isn't over. It's spy versus spy at my house. The fact that they were working together is a bad sign.
I fully expected to find blueprints for world domination. A crude drawing of the doorknob with notes in the margin - "Meow. Meow. Meow?" - and diagrams of opposable thumbs.

This all began with Spider, my larger, older, bossier cat, declaring an orange alert. One of her food bowls was nearly half empty, and frankly, it was ruining her morning. She decided I was getting out of bed early to remedy the situation. After the usual tactics didn't work - the "good morning" pose in which the chubby cat stomps on your back - she went to phase two: Full-throttle fire engine wailing.

Gracie, my tiny, hyperactive Siamese mix, took notes. When I ignored Spider and headed for the shower, she took things - specifically the doorknob - into her own paws.

I will concede this. My doorknobs are not the usual spherical mechanisms. I've moved into a new home with handle-type knobs, just the right size for a well-placed paw to activate.

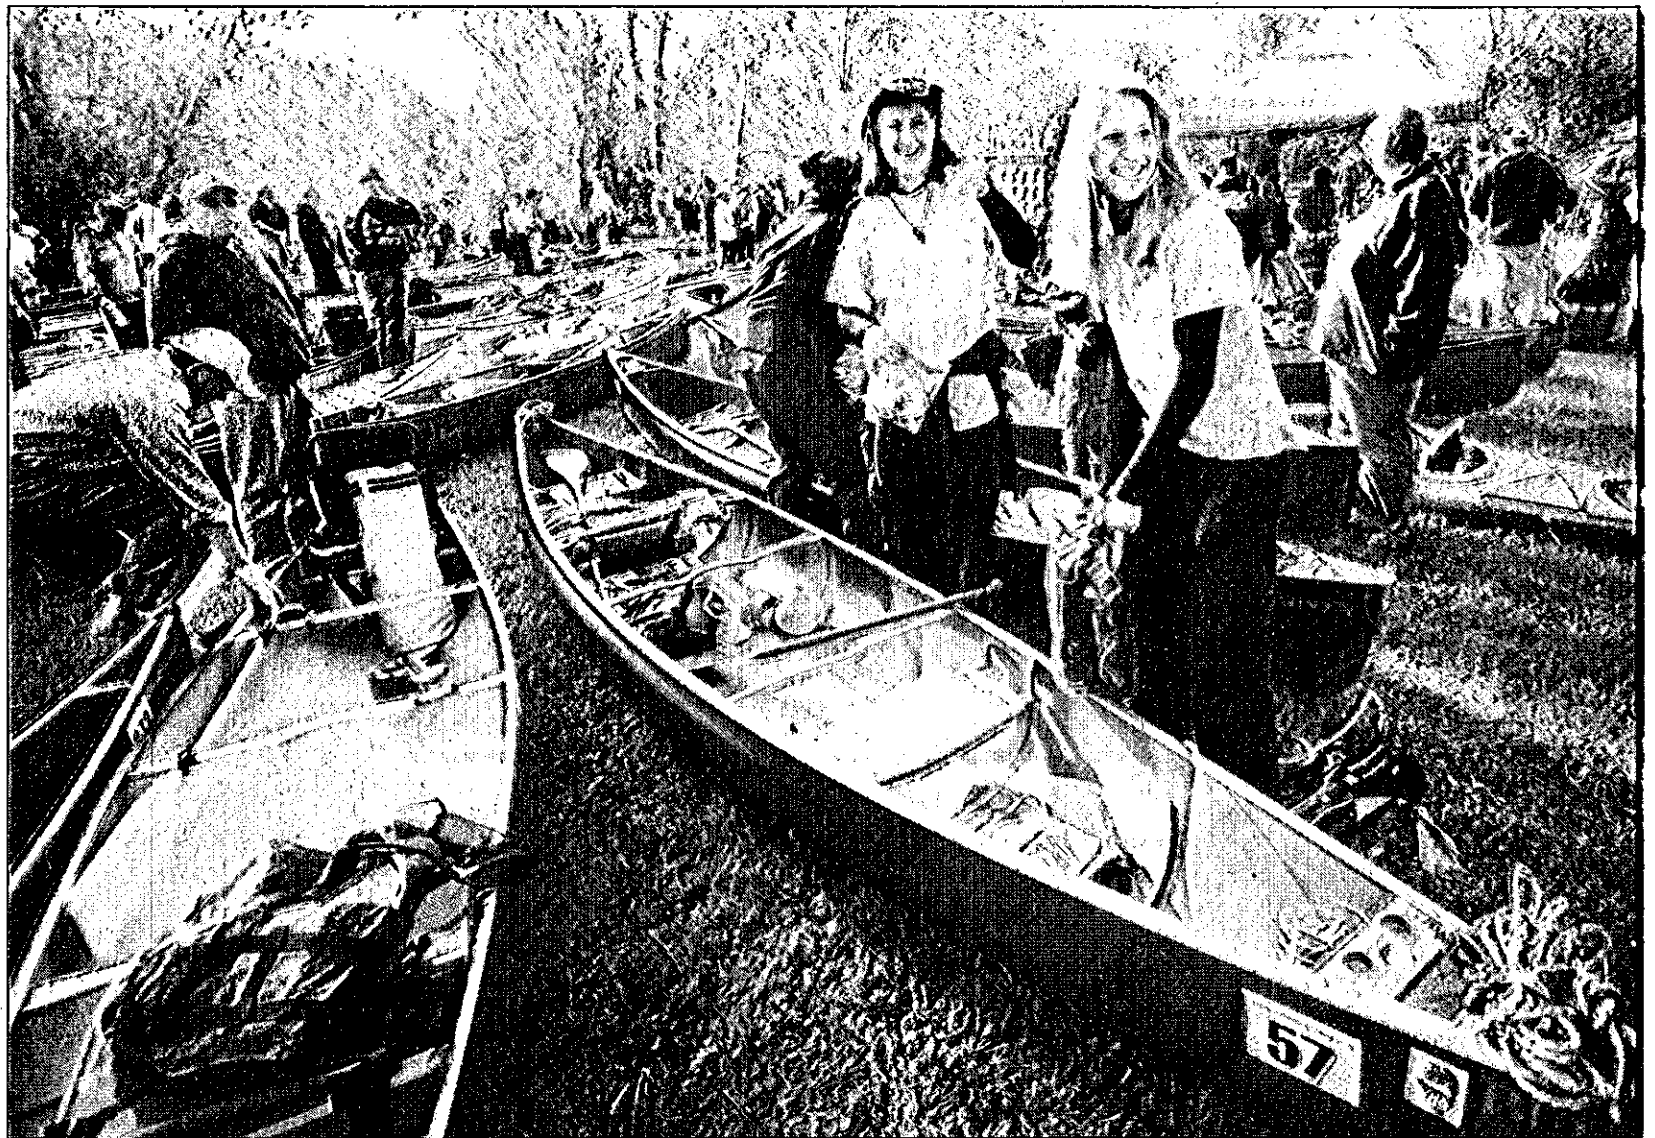

But now I fear the cats will become like the clever raptors that could open the doors in "Jurassic Park," leaving no place for me to hide.

"Feed us! Pet us! Bend to our will!"

I tried to tell myself the door incident was isolated. A few days later, an unaccompanied Gracie burst in on me. Apparently, Spider has been giving door-opening lessons to the neighborhood cats. One stray has been trying to open my sliding glass door for a few weeks now. Luckily, the feline offenders just don't have the technology yet.

I tell my guests to lock the door when they go to the bathroom at my house now. One day, the cats will pick the garage door lock with their claw, steal my car and my Social Security number.

For now, I keep an eye on the food bowl levels.

Canoes, kayaks take to Des Plaines River for marathon

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

Athena Cocallas tells her friends that she practically was born in a canoe.

She and her father, Andy, have hit been hitting the water for more than a decade and have participated in the Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon for about 10 years.

The father-daughter duo from Libertyville took first place in the marathon's adult/youth touring class in 2006 and 2007, beating out dozens of participants.

But Cocallas, 15, had to enter a new class in the race this year because of her age.

Before the 18.5-mile event began Sunday, she said that she hoped to win first place in the junior women touring class with her 16-year-old friend Megan Bess.

"My dad is going to guide us," she said. "He knows the river like the back of his hand. This is a lot of fun, especially if you win a lot of trophies."

More than 500 boats were registered in the 2008 Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon, which started in Libertyville and ended in Mt. Prospect.

Event chairman Jack Snarr said the course drew two types of people who liked to be out on the river.

"There are the competitors who have trained, and then there are people in it for the fun," he said. "There are a lot of people who are completely rung out when they're finished."

Ingleside couple Roman and Lynn Kozicki were two of this year's more competitive participants. The Kozickis said they trained several times a week for the marathon in their nearly 25-foot Surfski offshore ocean-racing kayak, which they used during the competition.

"We're competitors, but we're not complete diehards," Roman Kozicki said. "We've done it for 12 or 15 years."

Then there is Zion resident Mike Johnson, who is on the opposite end of the competitive spectrum.

He said he started participating in the marathon for fun with a friend in 2005.

"We just like being on the water," he said. "We've got one of the biggest, oldest canoes out there."

And where does Cocallas fall? Well, she and Bess did place first in their class this year with a time of 3 hours and 46 minutes.

Cocallas said she was happy with the performance.

"We averaged about 5 miles per hour the whole way," she said. "That's pretty good."

Tomorrow's leaders

FLIP preparing teens for future roles

By DANI SCHWEIGERT
dschweigert@nwnewsgroup.com

Become a leader

Drew Williams-Clark, assistant planner with Chicago Metropolitan Agency for Planning (CMAP), knows how important it is to get youth involved in planning for the future.

"There's a growing movement of people who want to see young people involved in urban planning," he said. "[Youth] see things in different and creative ways."

That's why CMAP is inviting Lake County high school students who will be sophomores or juniors during the 2008-09 school year to apply for CMAP's Future Leaders in Planning (FLIP) program.

This is FLIP's pilot year for the region, said Diana Torres with external relations at CMAP, and applications are due June 2.

Torres said the program will give teens an opportunity to participate in the planning process that is undertaken by their communities and region.

It also will allow them to collaborate with and learn from elected officials and planners who are developing the GO TO 2040 comprehensive regional plan, which is a plan that looks at how to improve the region by the year 2040.

"It's a fabulous opportunity to engage youth," Torres said.

What: Future Leaders in Planning (FLIP), a program that gives teens an opportunity to participate in the planning process of their communities and region

When: Applications are due June 2. FLIP begins in early September 2008 and continues through early March 2009.

Requirements: Must be a high school sophomore or junior in the 2008-09 school year; must live in Chicago or Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, McHenry and Will counties; must have an interest in learning more about the region and local communities

Cost: Free (cost of lunch and transportation will be provided)

For more information: Call 312-454-0400 or go to www.cmap.illinois.gov/flip.aspx; for more information about CMAP or GO TO 2040, go to www.cmap.illinois.gov/default.aspx

"We hope it empowers them to go back to their communities and talk to their friends and families about what they learn."

Torres said 45 to 48 students will be chosen for the program.

Fifteen to 18 students will be chosen from Lake, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, McHenry and Will counties, 15 students will be chosen from Chicago and 15 students will be chosen from Cook County.

Having students from different parts of the region be a part of FLIP is one way CMAP hopes to get an accurate feel for what teens think about a variety of issues such as transportation, housing, environmental and natural resources and economic and community development, Torres said.

"Kids from seven counties can come together and form a bond," she said.

"[We're looking for] mature high school students who can learn leadership and development skills that they can teach and share."

Those chosen will participate in an orientation, an overnight retreat and five Saturday sessions, where they will travel the region and discuss potential improvements and future plans, Torres said.

They also will meet with regional leaders who make planning decisions for the region. At the end of the program, participants will present their recommendations to the CMAP Board.

Providing teens with an outlet to be involved in planning the future of the region is why CMAP created FLIP, Williams-Clark said.

"We're making sure kids have an opportunity to make their voices heard and make their world a better place," he said.

Field trip to help educate teachers in Lake County

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Lake County Farm Bureau has announced that July 7-10 will be when the 13th annual educator field trip will take place. The educator field trip is sponsored annually by the Lake County Farm Bureau and provides educators with an opportunity to experience local agriculture on a personal level. The trip is designed to immerse teachers into agriculture so they can better understand the multitude of affects it has on everyday life.

Educators who attend the trip have the opportunity to receive 40 Continuing Professional Development Units or can choose to obtain graduate credit from the University of Illinois through completion of follow-up work.

By participating in this institute, teachers broaden their own agriculture experience and are better able to incorporate a general knowledge and understanding of agriculture to the students in their classrooms.

The trips involves tours of 11 area agribusinesses that are located in Lake, Cook, and McHenry counties. Stops include the USDA at O'Hare airport, Didier's Farm, the Chicago Board of Trade, Arlington Park, and Windance Acres, just to name a few. This unique opportunity to experience local agriculture on a first hand basis has limited space, and fills up quickly.

The Lake County Farm Bureau's Agriculture in the Classroom program sponsors the educator field trip and many other programs that are dedicated to educating Lake County about the importance of agriculture. Agriculture in the Classroom is a national program designed to help students acquire the knowledge needed to become agriculturally literate.

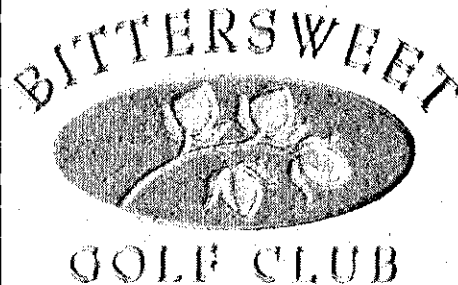

The Lake County Farm Bureau is a source of abundant resources and agriculturally related programs for both educators and students.

For information about what the AITC program has to offer, contact Information Director Andy Blaul at 847-223-6506 or by e-mail at ablaul@ameritech.net.

Mundelein woman wins two lotteries

By DANI SCHWEIGERT

dschweigert@nwnewsjournal.com

MUNDELEIN – Maybe it's her Irish roots, but Angela Chiero-Osborne certainly seems to have luck on her side.

The Mundelein resident has had two $100,000 Lottery wins in the past three years.

"I was absolutely stunned because you never think it's ever going to happen," she said. "Each time, it couldn't have come at a better time."

Chiero-Osborne's latest win came from a Holiday Bingo ticket she recently bought in Mundelein. She had won $10 from Holiday Bingo the day before, so she didn't plan to buy any more Holiday Bingo tickets because she thought the odds of winning again were slim.

But a phone call distracted her, and she bought two tickets – one of which was a $100,000 winner. She then bought a $250 Million Millionaire's Club instant ticket and won $50.

"I always said if I won again, I could fix everything I did wrong the first time," she said. "I felt I was given a second chance. Lightning never strikes twice in the same place, [but] lightning just struck twice."

And the money has definitely come in handy, Chiero-Osborne said, as she has three sons.

"They're a handful to say the least," she said with a laugh. "With the price of gas and groceries, it's a struggle."

Chiero-Osborne said her children and husband, Jim, plan to take a trip to Six Flags Great America in Kentucky and refinance their house with the money she won. She also recently bought a new car.

"I think it's just pure luck," she said. "I just think there's an angel sitting on my shoulder."

Chiero-Osborne's first win came in August 2005 from a Little Lotto ticket she bought in Palatine.

She said she was leaving her sister-in-laws and stopped to buy the ticket because she passed the exit she needed twice and her children were being noisy in the car.

Having won twice, Chiero-Osborne had some advice for fellow Lottery players.

"Don't ever think that it can't happen to you," she said. "I just let the man upstairs help me decide what to choose."

Robotic Prostate Surgery Provides Fast Recovery

Matthew W. Johnson, MD
Urologist
Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center

Choosing a treatment option for prostate cancer is a very personal decision. When removing the prostate gland is the best option, there is a minimally-invasive procedure that can provide a faster recovery while preserving sexual function.

Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center was the first facility in Wisconsin to offer the da Vinci® Robotic Prostatectomy. This minimally-invasive surgical procedure replaces the larger incision and some of the risks of a traditional radical prostatectomy.

The state-of-the-art robotic system enables the surgeon to see vital anatomical structures more clearly and to perform a more precise surgical procedure. Recent studies suggest that the procedure may improve early return of continence and sexual function. Cancer control is equivalent.

achieves all the objectives of traditional surgery with less trauma to each patient. This translates into shorter recovery time and less pain.

The da Vinci system has been used for thousands of prostate procedures throughout the world. Matthew W. Johnson, MD, Peter F. Leonovitch, III, MD and Jeffrey A. Derus, MD perform robotic prostatectomies at Aurora St. Luke's. They are the most experienced surgeons in Wisconsin who do this operation.

"The recovery is shorter and it doesn't compromise cancer control," Dr. Johnson notes.

Potential benefits over open surgery include:

- Less pain
- Shorter hospital stay
- Less risk of infection
- Faster recovery
- Less scarring
- Less blood loss and fewer transfusions
- Quicker return to normal activities

The da Vinci system is a state-of-the-art robotic system that offers improved outcomes for patients needing a prostatectomy for prostate cancer.

The da Vinci system requires only a few small incisions in the abdomen through which micro instruments are inserted to access the prostate area. The surgeon's hands remain outside the patient's body. But the system translates the surgeon's hand movements into precise positioning and use of the surgical instruments within the surgical site. The operation

Experienced Hands
Having performed over 500 procedures, more than twice as many urological procedures as any other provider, Aurora St. Luke's is Wisconsin's most experienced leader in robotic-assisted surgery.

Almost all men under 70 years of age with localized cancer who are considering a radical prostatectomy are candidates for robotic surgery. Open surgery is still a good option for many patients, according to Dr. Johnson, including those with a larger prostate, who are very overweight or have had previous pelvic surgery.

"Early evidence from large studies shows that sexual function may be improved with robotic surgery over open surgery," Dr. Johnson says. "You can see and save the nerves better. Robotic surgery provides superior instrumentation. With a millimeter separating cancer and nerves, the magnified view of robotic surgery makes a millimeter look like a centimeter. Getting into that space is much easier with da Vinci."

Bring on pools

This year, like so many years past, I plan on going to a swimming pool on Memorial Day to celebrate the official start to my brief respite from northern winters.

While the first day of summer is June 20, it's common knowledge that summer actually begins with Memorial Day and the opening of pools and ends with Labor Day and the closing of said pools. It's one of the few bits of math I have ever cared about - access to dug-in rectangles of water equals summer.

It could be 50 degrees outside and I would still go. It could literally be raining cats and dogs (hopefully Chihuahuas or some other small canine) and I would still go.

I'll be there to greet a swimming pool on Memorial Day like a parent on the doorstep after a child's first day at school. Except without the milk and cookies. They don't mix well with pool water.

And I'm not alone in this.

Millions of others will join me by going to a swimming pool on Memorial Day.

Communal bathing isn't a new phenomenon by any means. The ancient Romans hung out together in water, though those were more like hot springs than what we think of as pools today.

I've tried the hot spring thing, and I can see why the switch was made.

A few years ago, my father took my brother and I to Sol Duc Hot Springs in Olympia National Park in Washington. It was a horrifying experience.

The hot springs smelled bad, loose tufts of hair were floating throughout the springs and every 10 feet or so there was an old lady doing tai chi, which to two teenage boys was like seeing your grandma in a bathing suit doing a bad Bruce Lee impersonation.

I felt bad for my dad.

Here he was trying to do something nice for us, and all we could think about were grandmothers in skimpy clothing at one with the world, hair-laden water and the smell of sulfur.

I'm sorry, Dad. We tried to enjoy ourselves, but it was beyond nasty.

At least they had a regular pool, which was a little bit better, but you still climbed out of it smelling slightly of either rotten eggs or farts. It was like taking a dive into the Yankee Candle from Hell.

We all know pool water isn't supposed to smell like anything other than chlorine and sun tan lotion, quite possibly one of the best scents ever concocted. Put that in a new car and it would sell out in a day, guaranteed.

You're supposed to feel clean getting out of a pool. This might seem strange since you're sharing the pool with hundreds of other people, some of whom might not be the cleanest people in the world, but most public pools keep enough chlorine in the pool to sanitize a small battalion much less a handful of pool-goers.

And water just feels good.

People go to pools to escape the heat. People take baths to relax. People go on cruises when they could get the exact same treatment at an all-inclusive hotel because, well, I think it's because they're crazy, but maybe it's because they like to be surrounded by water.

The opening day for swimming pools essentially is a door that leads to three months of relaxed happiness before they're shut down again and we all get our coats back out of the closet.

And for as great as real pools are, the only thing better are water parks.

I pretty much demanded that my fiancée take me to Wisconsin Dells last summer for my birthday. For her birthday, she like dinners at fancy restaurants in Chicago. For my birthday, I like being flushed down tubes as if I were simulated toilet.

What can I say?

We were meant for each other.

But to start the summer season, I like to begin by visiting the simple swimming pool. There will be time for water parks later. At least until Labor Day when I bid my final farewell. And you can bet I'll be at a swimming pool on that day, as well.

Setting record straight

To the Editor

Recently, a very misleading postcard was mailed to residents here in central Lake County asserting that I voted against background checks on all handgun sales. That is simply not true. The postcard was the work of a special interest group targeting me and other legislators in regard to our vote on House Bill 758, legislation specifically pertaining only to the sale of handguns between private citizens - both of whom are qualified Firearm Owners Identification (FOID) card holders.

I would like to take this opportunity to set the record straight.

All Illinois residents who buy or possess firearms, including handguns, are required by law to have a valid FOID card. FOID cards are issued by the Illinois State Police after they conduct a background check of the applicant (a 30-day process).

Under current Illinois law, all private sales of firearms must include an examination of the purchaser's FOID card. In addition to checking the purchaser's FOID card, the seller in a private gun sale is required to withhold the firearm from the buyer for 24 hours, if the firearm being transferred is a long gun (rifle or shotgun). If the gun being transferred is a handgun, the seller in a private gun sale must withhold the firearm from the buyer for 72 hours. The seller is also required to keep a private record of the firearm transfer.

The FOID card system and other controls on private gun sales work well here in Illinois. The Illinois FOID law is the toughest of its kind in the nation.

In addition to our FOID check requirements, current law also provides that all private transfers at Illinois gun shows must include an electronic background check. Participants in Illinois gun shows must do an instant background check of their purchasers before transferring the gun to them. This is true whether or not the gun-show participant is a federally licensed firearms dealer.

Also, Illinois must cooperate with the FBI and participate in our new nationwide system to share information about persons with mental health issues or a felony criminal history; factors that prohibit such people from obtaining a FOID card or legally purchasing a firearm.

Our top priorities should be to ensure that those with a felony criminal history, serious mental health issues, and persons who have orders of protection issued against them are prohibited from obtaining a FOID card and legally purchasing a gun, while at the same time protecting the rights of all other law-abiding Illinoisans. This is a reasonable and responsible policy that strikes a healthy balance between public safety and the rights of Illinois citizens to obtain a FOID card and legally purchase a gun.

No increase in pay

To the Editor:

I am against any pay raise for members of the Lake County Board at this time. With the rising price of food and gasoline and the increase in property taxes, the Lake County Board should be sending a message to its constituents that we all need to sacrifice a little until we get through with this rough patch in the economy. As elected officials, the members of the County Board should set an example for the residents of Lake County. Because of the current challenges in the economy, the members of the Lake County Board have the opportunity to say that they, too, are willing to sacrifice and set an example for the good of the community. Elected officials can show leadership by postponing their salary increase.

When the economy improves, local schools are financed without huge increases in our property taxes, and the government develops a sensible energy policy, an increase in the salaries of the members of the Lake County Board might be appropriate. Until that time, I'm not in favor of any plan to increase the pay of Lake County Board members.

Presidential race too negative, divisive

Will Rogers, my favorite humorist, once said, "I don't belong to any organized political party; I'm a Democrat."

If ever there was a profound statement that has lasted the test of time, it's the Will Rogers quotation. Even Rogers would be shocked at how disorganized the Democratic Party could get if he were on the sidelines now. He would probably say something like, "Wow, my Democrats can screw up a one-car funeral."

Yes, this year the Democrats outdid themselves and reached the most ridiculous example of how not to select a nominee for the presidency.

The Republicans started off kilter but righted the ship more readily. The long and weary campaign to choose either Barack Obama or Hillary Clinton as the Democratic standard bearer turned so bitter, nasty, and negative, that the voting public turned off their collective hearing aids from the political fiasco.

I've already reported in this column that the whole process of choosing our president is a political sham and sideshow, and it's not just what the Democrats are doing. Why not just one primary election day across the country, where we choose on that day who battles it out in the November general election?

In my long experience of following politics, I have never seen a year so frustrating for the American public. The disingenuous campaigns come at a time when the stakes for the country are so high. I have seen polls that register up to 80 percent of the people as not satisfied with the direction of our country, yet we are mired in a sea of political gobbledygook.

In fact, I was recently at a social function, and a joke was being passed around that evidently was sweeping the country. It went something like "if all of the presidential nominees were in a boat in a lake and the boat sank, who would survive?" And the punch line answer was "the country."

That might be a joke, but the strong response to it tells me that the people are fed up with the whole political process. Didn't someone once say that "politics is too important to be left up to politicians?" I think that's what the public is saying. In spite of all of the rhetoric and sound bites about change, the public seems convinced that they are beings sold a bill of goods, and they had better get used to the status quo.

Before we see any change of direction in the country, we better see a drastic change in elections. Until that happens, it will be the same old stuff, no matter which political party wins.

How can there be a change of direction when an obscene amount of money is being spent in the political campaigns. As I write this, Obama has received about $235 million dollars and Clinton about $190 million, and one of those plus the political party will spend tons more in November. The Republicans will be at the political cash booth too. Are those millions being spent to bring changes to foster the welfare of the general public or to grease the skids for the high and mighty? You have one guess - and you're right.

If we are voting only to find out which political party controls the "turn-key" to the acccesses of government, is that enough to bring about a new direction in the country? I don't think so.

What happened to the principle, "of the people, by the people, and for the people?" When politicians of both political parties live up to that, they will quit being called politicians, and we'll be headed in a new direction. Hold your breath.

Dogs still get hugs they need

Before I had children, I had dogs. They were essentially my kids, my furry little babies. And I loved them as such.

I dressed them in costumes every holiday; they slept on the couch or bed as they pleased; and we went on regular PetSmart outings each week-end.

Then I had a human child. And I still loved my dogs. I sent home a blanket from the hospital with the baby's scent and piled them with treats when we came home so they wouldn't be jealous. Every time the baby cried, the dogs would jump up and run over to investigate.

Then, about two years later, another baby came home from the hospital. A few more years later, another one. No longer did the dogs jump up to investigate the baby cries. In fact they looked downright disgusted, as if to say, "Another one? When will it end?"

These days, the weekly PetSmart outings have long been discontinued and the couch and bed are off limits, with sleep now relegated to a dog bed.

The costumes are gone now too, but my dogs are probably thankful for that. And I hope the abundance of food that falls from the highchair makes up for the lack of trips to PetSmart.

Currently, I have one large dog, Goofy, and one tiny dog, Minnie, which my husband refers to as my "Paris Hilton dog," which I suppose would be appropriate if, like me, Paris Hilton drove a minivan and got excited when milk went on sale.

Although they may not have a pampered life of leisure, Goofy and Minnie never lack for hugs and sloppy kisses.

Overall though, having pets is a rewarding experience, totally worth the work, expense and hair involved. It has taught my kids how to be gentle and empathetic and also how to dispose of unwanted food at the dinner table.

As for Goofy and Minnie, if there is a heaven for dogs, with their patience and unconditional love, they have definitely earned their spot.

EAT YOUR GREENS

Pricey produce got you down? Grow your own

By GENEVA WHITE
editorial@nwnewsgroup.com

Three dollars and 99 cents for a couple of measly peppers?

It's enough to make anyone grab a spade and a bag of fertilizer.

With the price of food increasing and more people looking to eat organic, this could be the perfect summer to start that backyard garden.

Vegetables such as spinach, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and lettuce can go into the ground right now. But it might be best to wait until later this month to plant highly coveted goodies such as tomatoes and peppers, said Craig MacLean, co-owner of The Pure Gardener in Geneva. He said this is a good time of year to prepare the soil, an important step in the veggie-growing process.

"It's better to put a 50 cent plant in a $5 hole than a $5 plant in a 50 cent hole," MacLean said. "Put effort into your preparation and anything will grow."

Location, location, location

If your yard has never had a garden, you'll want to start by selecting a fertile spot. Find a sunny area of the yard and put down black sheets of plastic, such as garbage bags to kill the grass in the space where the garden will be located, MacLean said. Once the grass dies, a pitchfork can be used to till the soil and work in the dead grass. Depending on the size of your garden, a tiller can be rented from a local rental facility.

From table scraps to healthy soil

An eco-friendly way to ready the soil is composting. Keep a Tupperware container underneath the kitchen sink and collect coffee grounds, eggshells and non-meat/non-fish table scraps. Compost increases the organic content in the soil, MacLean said.

"You're doing the right thing and you're saving money," he said.

If you're unable to compost at home, MacLean's business carries varieties of organic fertilizers.

"You kind of want to work all this stuff in before you start planting," he said. "When plants hit that stuff, they'll say 'Oh man, does that feel good.'"

See GARDEN, page 4B

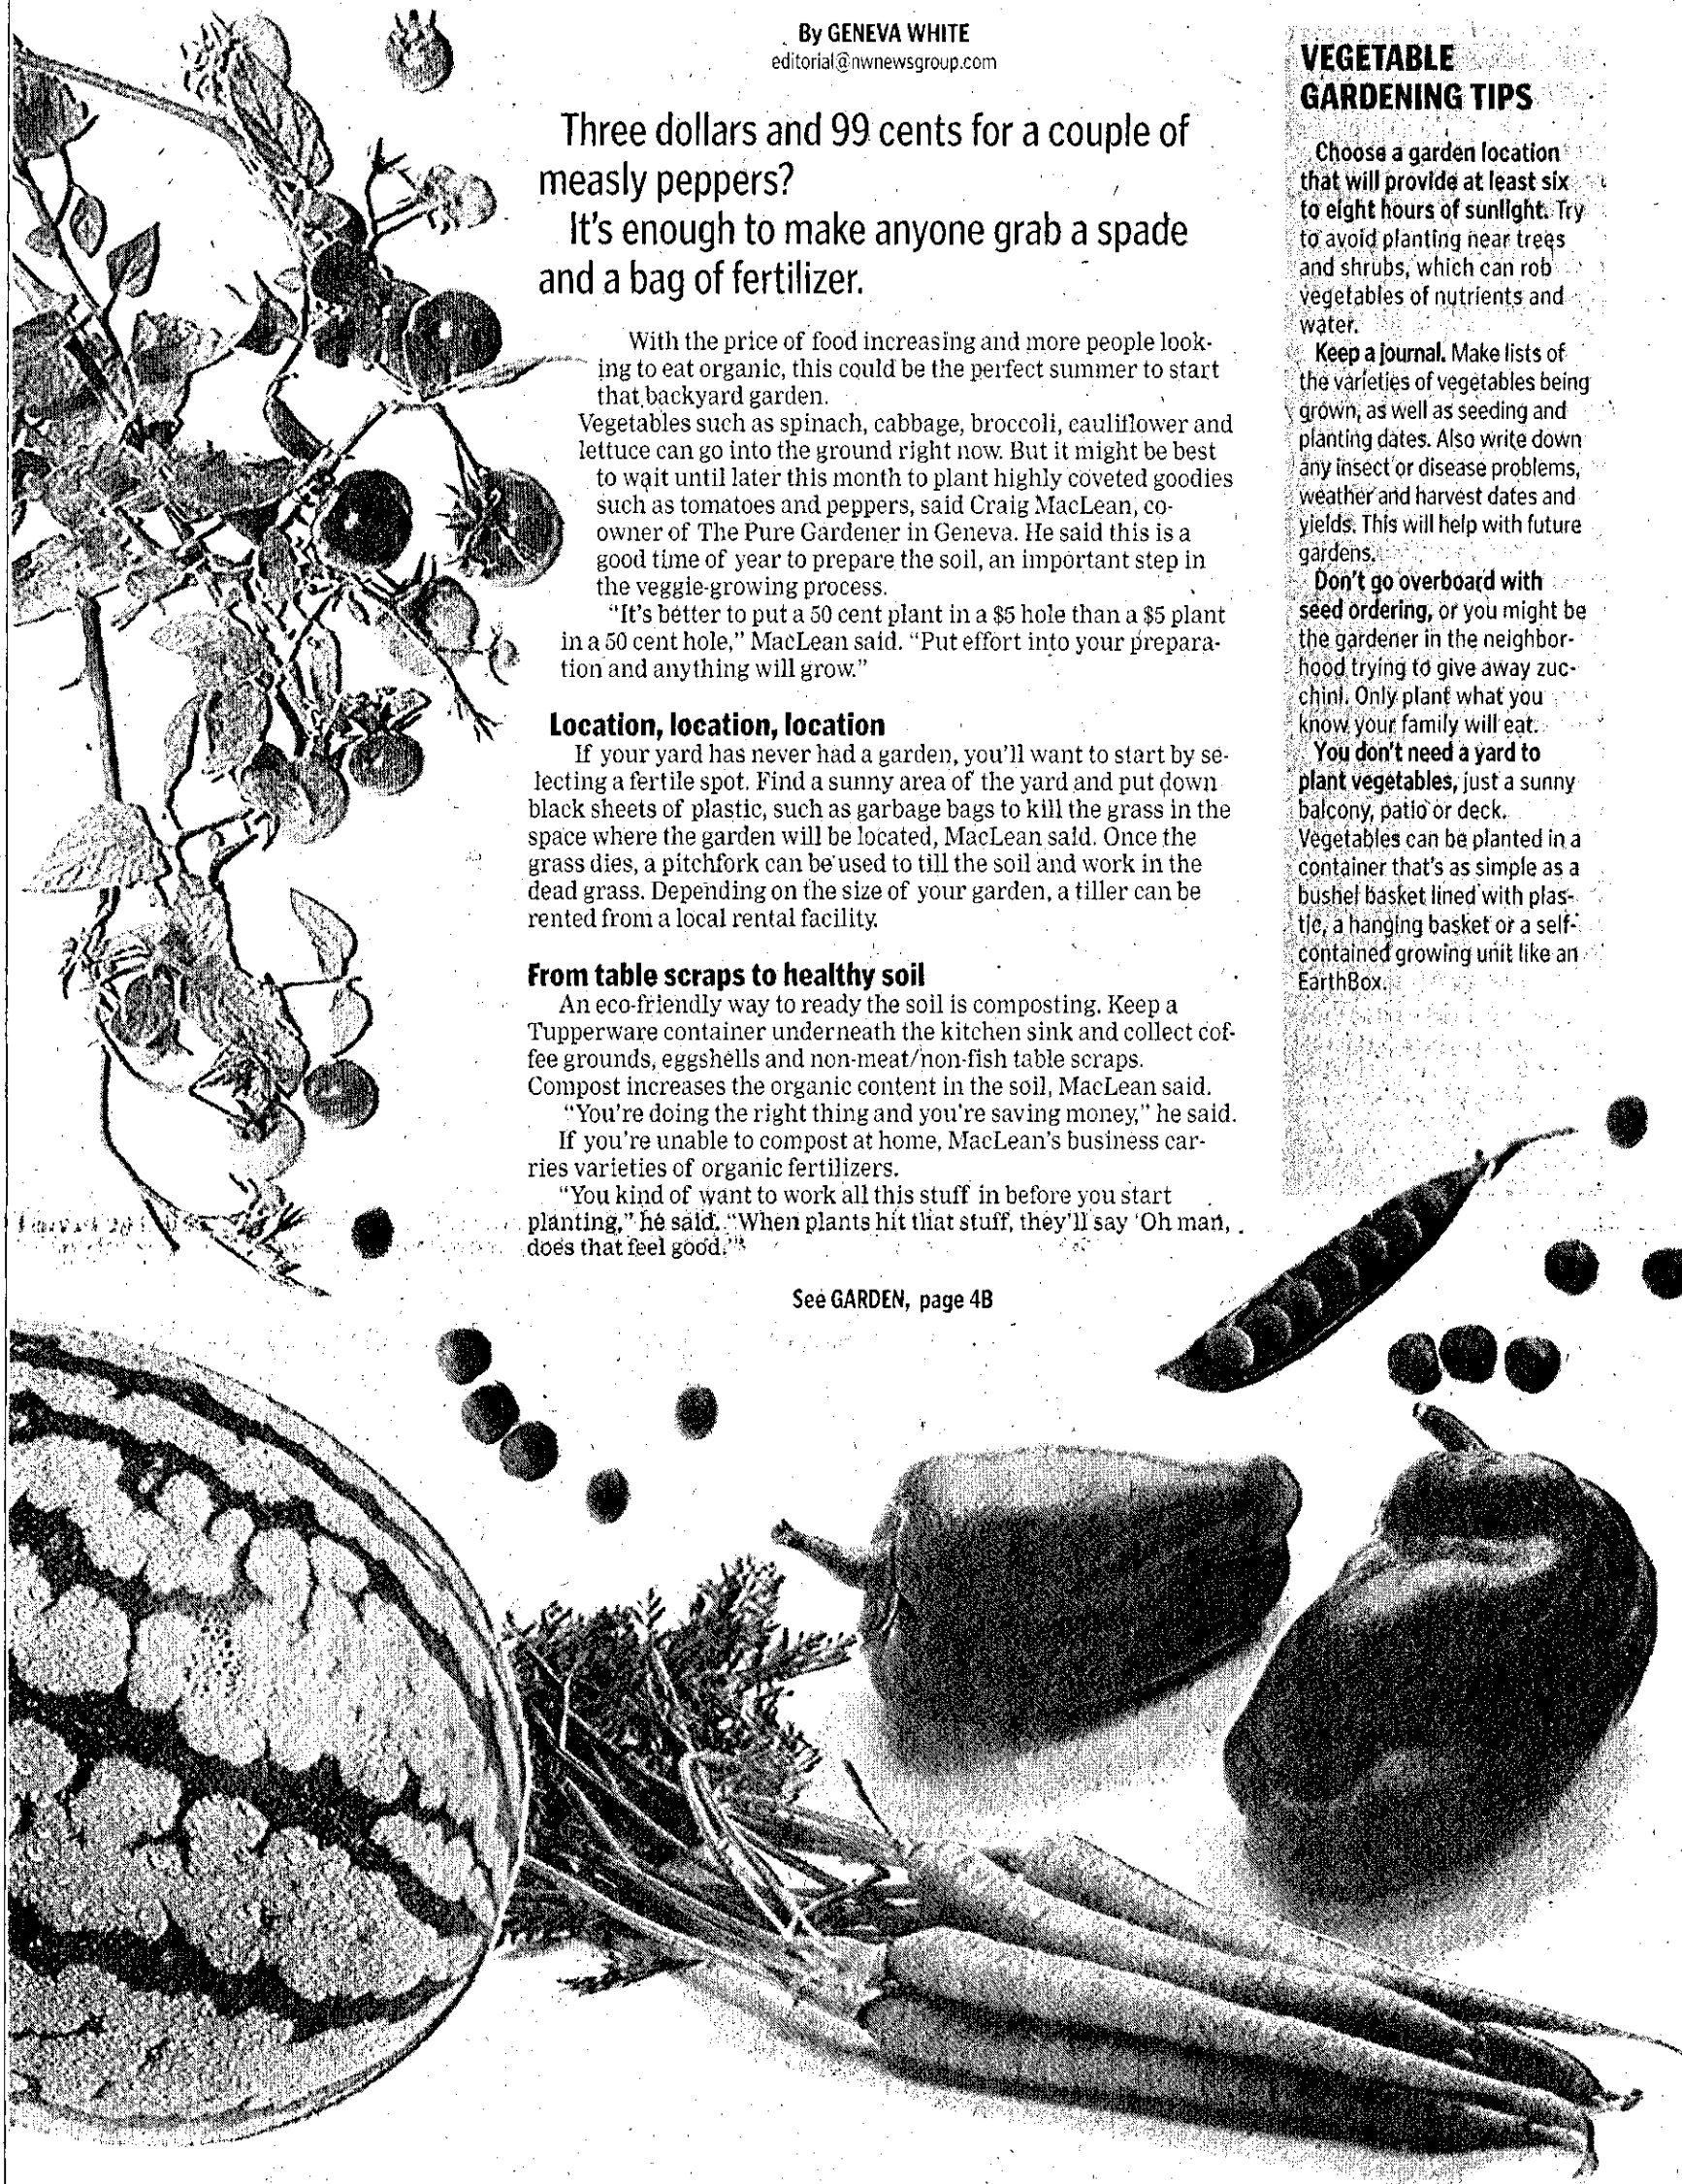

VEGETABLE GARDENING TIPS

Choose a garden location that will provide at least six to eight hours of sunlight. Try to avoid planting near trees and shrubs, which can rob vegetables of nutrients and water.

Keep a journal. Make lists of the varieties of vegetables being grown, as well as seeding and planting dates. Also write down any insect or disease problems, weather and harvest dates and yields. This will help with future gardens.

Don't go overboard with seed ordering, or you might be the gardener in the neighborhood trying to give away zucchini. Only plant what you know your family will eat.

You don't need a yard to plant vegetables; just a sunny balcony, patio or deck. Vegetables can be planted in a container that's as simple as a bushel basket lined with plastic, a hanging basket or a self-contained growing unit like an EarthBox.

'Comedy of Errors' in new twist with World War II

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

Shakespeare is for the ages, and that is smartly shown in the unique reinterpretation of "The Comedy of Errors" at Chicago Shakespeare Theater.

Director Barbara Gaines goes out on a limb in staging this timeless play in 1940 London during the height of World War II and succeeds with flying colors.

What makes this version of the Bard's earliest comedy are scenes crafted by Second City writer-director Ron West that frame the play-within-a-play.

West frames the original play with a disparate group of stage and screen actors on a movie set, determined to make their film as a gift to the fighting troops.

The performers carry on despite personal conflicts and air raids forcing hasty retreats to the bomb shelter, even as ceiling plaster comes crashing down during the blitzkrieg.

The frame highlights the difficulty – and dedication – of the film company, Shepperton Studios, as it tries to go about its business.

This device surrounds the basic Shakespearean story, which remains intact during the performance. Arriving in Ephesus, Antipholus and his servant Dromio search for their identical twin brothers from whom they were separated at birth.

When the two sets of twins unknowingly intersect, a hilarious series of misunderstandings and miscommunications ensue.

Gaines provides a thoroughly wacky, totally engaging production with an inimitable cast (in dual roles), including Ross Lehman as the film director Dudley and Dromio of Syracuse; Veronica, as his wife; and Timothy Edward Kane as her lover Emerson and Antipholus of Syracuse.

There's also Kevin Gudahl as Lord Halifax, an experienced Shakespearean who finds himself grudgingly assigned to a minor role in order to accommodate Sean Allan Krill, playing an American pop idol.

Among others in the cast are William Dick, Greg Vinkler, Paula Scrofano, Sean Fortunato, Dale Benson, Kymberly Mellen and Douglas Vickers.

Don't grow crops that won't be eaten

Start small

The biggest mistake people make in gardening is thinking too big, said Wonder Lake resident Mike Iwanicki. An avid gardener since childhood, Iwanicki recommends growing only as much as you can eat or freeze. Planting huge rows of lettuce, for example, can result in an unnecessary surplus, he said.

"If you don't enjoy it, you're not going to have fun," said Iwanicki, 47. "Start small and grow salad-type crops like lettuce, peas, beans – stuff that's going to be relatively easy to grow. If you like that, expand the garden each year."

Although certain types of radishes can grow in 30 days, tomatoes can take at least 60 or 80 days to produce fruit, he said. Iwanicki's already started growing this year's peas, lettuce, radishes, garlic and shallots. Other veggies Iwanicki enjoys planting include winter squash and parsnips. He also cans much of the food he grows and makes his own salsa with ingredients from his garden.

“There's nothing to say you have to have a garden to grow vegetables.”

Craig MacLean

Co-owner of The Pure Gardener in Geneva

Think outside the yard

Don't have enough room for a backyard garden? Thanks to container planting, even townhouse and apartment dwellers can grow fresh produce and herbs right on their decks.

Hanging baskets can work for growing small, cherry-sized tomatoes, MacLean said. Larger tomatoes can be grown in an "EarthBox," a flower box-like container that has its own water reservoir.

"There's nothing to say you have to have a garden to grow vegetables," MacLean said.

Another option is the Topsy Turvy, which can be hung on a deck, tree or other structure. The invention allows tomatoes and other vine-like plants to grow "upside down."

"My father saw [tomatoes] growing out of five-gallon buckets in Australia," said Britton Felknor, operations manager for Felknor Ventures in Knoxville, Tenn. His dad, Bill, invented the Topsy Turvy. "Something just clicked in his head. He thinks up the most off-the-wall things."

The best part about growing your own food is knowing exactly where it comes from, Felknor said.

Produce can be labeled "organic" at the grocery store, but it might have been grown near a row of vegetables that were sprayed with pesticides, he said.

Therapeutic benefits

Growing a garden provides more than just fresh food at a reasonable cost.

For gardeners such as Iwanicki, the hobby also offers him some relaxation and time away from work.

"It's satisfaction," Iwanicki said. "When I was a kid, I wanted to be a farmer."

The Last Chance Saloon & Grill: First Choice For Food and Fun

There's a whimsical bit of the Old West in the heart of very Midwestern Grayslake.

Open 365 days a year, the Last Chance Saloon & Grill is a combination neighborhood bar, eatery, and Western museum full of cowboy memorabilia. Old photos, movie posters, six shooters, and rifles are just some of the items that crowd every inch of wall space. An antique cigar store Indian presides over the dining area, while a painting of femme fatale, "Big Nose Kate", stakes a claim over the bar.

Partners Gary Roberts Junior and Senior are masters of ceremony at the Last Chance Saloon, warmly greeting patrons by name while making sure the service is fast and friendly. Gary Roberts, Sr. said they've owned the 60-year-old bar for the past 14 years. During that time they've amassed their eclectic collection and expanded the pool hall and game room.

A full service bar with two wide screen TVs and seating for 40 dominates the center of the restaurant. The surrounding dining area can accommodate 140 customers, many in the good-sized booths that line the room. Gary also said they have a private party room that seats 50 to 75.

The extensive menu reflects

Gary Senior's 51 years in the restaurant business. The Last Chance Saloon has a reasonably priced item for every taste. The lunch and dinner menu offers appetizers, salads, soups, chili, sandwiches, burgers, hot dogs, pizza, full course meals including steaks and chops, and, of course, dessert. There are 13 items on the children's menu alone, and kids eat free with a full-paying adult per child after 4:00 p.m. on Friday, Saturday, and Monday. The restaurant also serves breakfast Saturday and Sunday.

Gary noted that the Last Chance Saloon attracts families, especially now that the restaurant is smoke free. And he said their burgers are a big hit. "They're the best burgers in Lake County." Of course, I had to give one a try. At $4.85, their hefty 7 pound saloon burger was fresh and juicy, and served with grilled onions, tomato, lettuce, and pickle.

The Last Chance Saloon and Grill also offers daily specials, such as an all-you-can-eat fish fry for $10.49 on Wednesday and Friday, or all-you-can-eat fried chicken for $10.49 on Thursday. And, to add to the fun, Karaoke is offered every Friday and Saturday night from 9:30 p.m. to 2:00 a.m.

"If you want good food and a good time, this is the place to come," Gary said. For fans of the Old West, the Last Chance Saloon & Grill is an extra-special treat, with, as their menu says, "The Best Grub in Town."

A county to be proud of Last weekend was the IHSA Class AA State Finals for girls track. And even though Grant's Bailey Wagner was the only one in our coverage area with a first place finish, I think the hard work and dedication of all the girls is something to cheer about.

Wagner finished her high school career with a first-place finish in discus with a throw of 157 feet, 8 inches, and a second-place finish in shot put with a throw of 48-11 1/2. Her teammate Tori Ziegler wasn't too far behind. Ziegler placed fourth in both shot put and discus. Her shot put distance was 44-9 3/4 and her discus distance was 144-4.

But the Grant duo isn't the only ones that deserve praise. The Grant girls track team finished fifth at the state finals.

As impressive as Wagner and Ziegler were at the state finals, they were not the only ones to place in the top spots. Warren's Heather Olson took fourth in the 1600-meter run with a time of 4:57.31.

Other students who placed are Lakes junior Ariel Butzine in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:15.83 and sophomore Erin Poss of Antioch, who placed 38th in the 3200-meter run.

But no matter where anyone placed, the experience of getting to compete at that level is something every participant should be proud of.

Girls track wasn't the only thing going on this weekend. The boys tennis IHSA Sectionals were going on as well. In the Warren Sectional, Warren finished second. Warren tied with Lake Forest with a score of 30, but Lake Forest won the sectional with a tie-breaker.

But the Blue Devils aren't hanging their heads. They won both the single and doubles championship.

Junior Denis Bogatov, No. 1 singles at Warren, was the singles champion, winning the match in two sets, 6-3, 6-1.

And seniors Igor Fedorov and Konrad Siczek have a lot to smile about. The Warren No. 1 doubles team took home the championship, also winning the match in two sets, 6-3, 6-3.

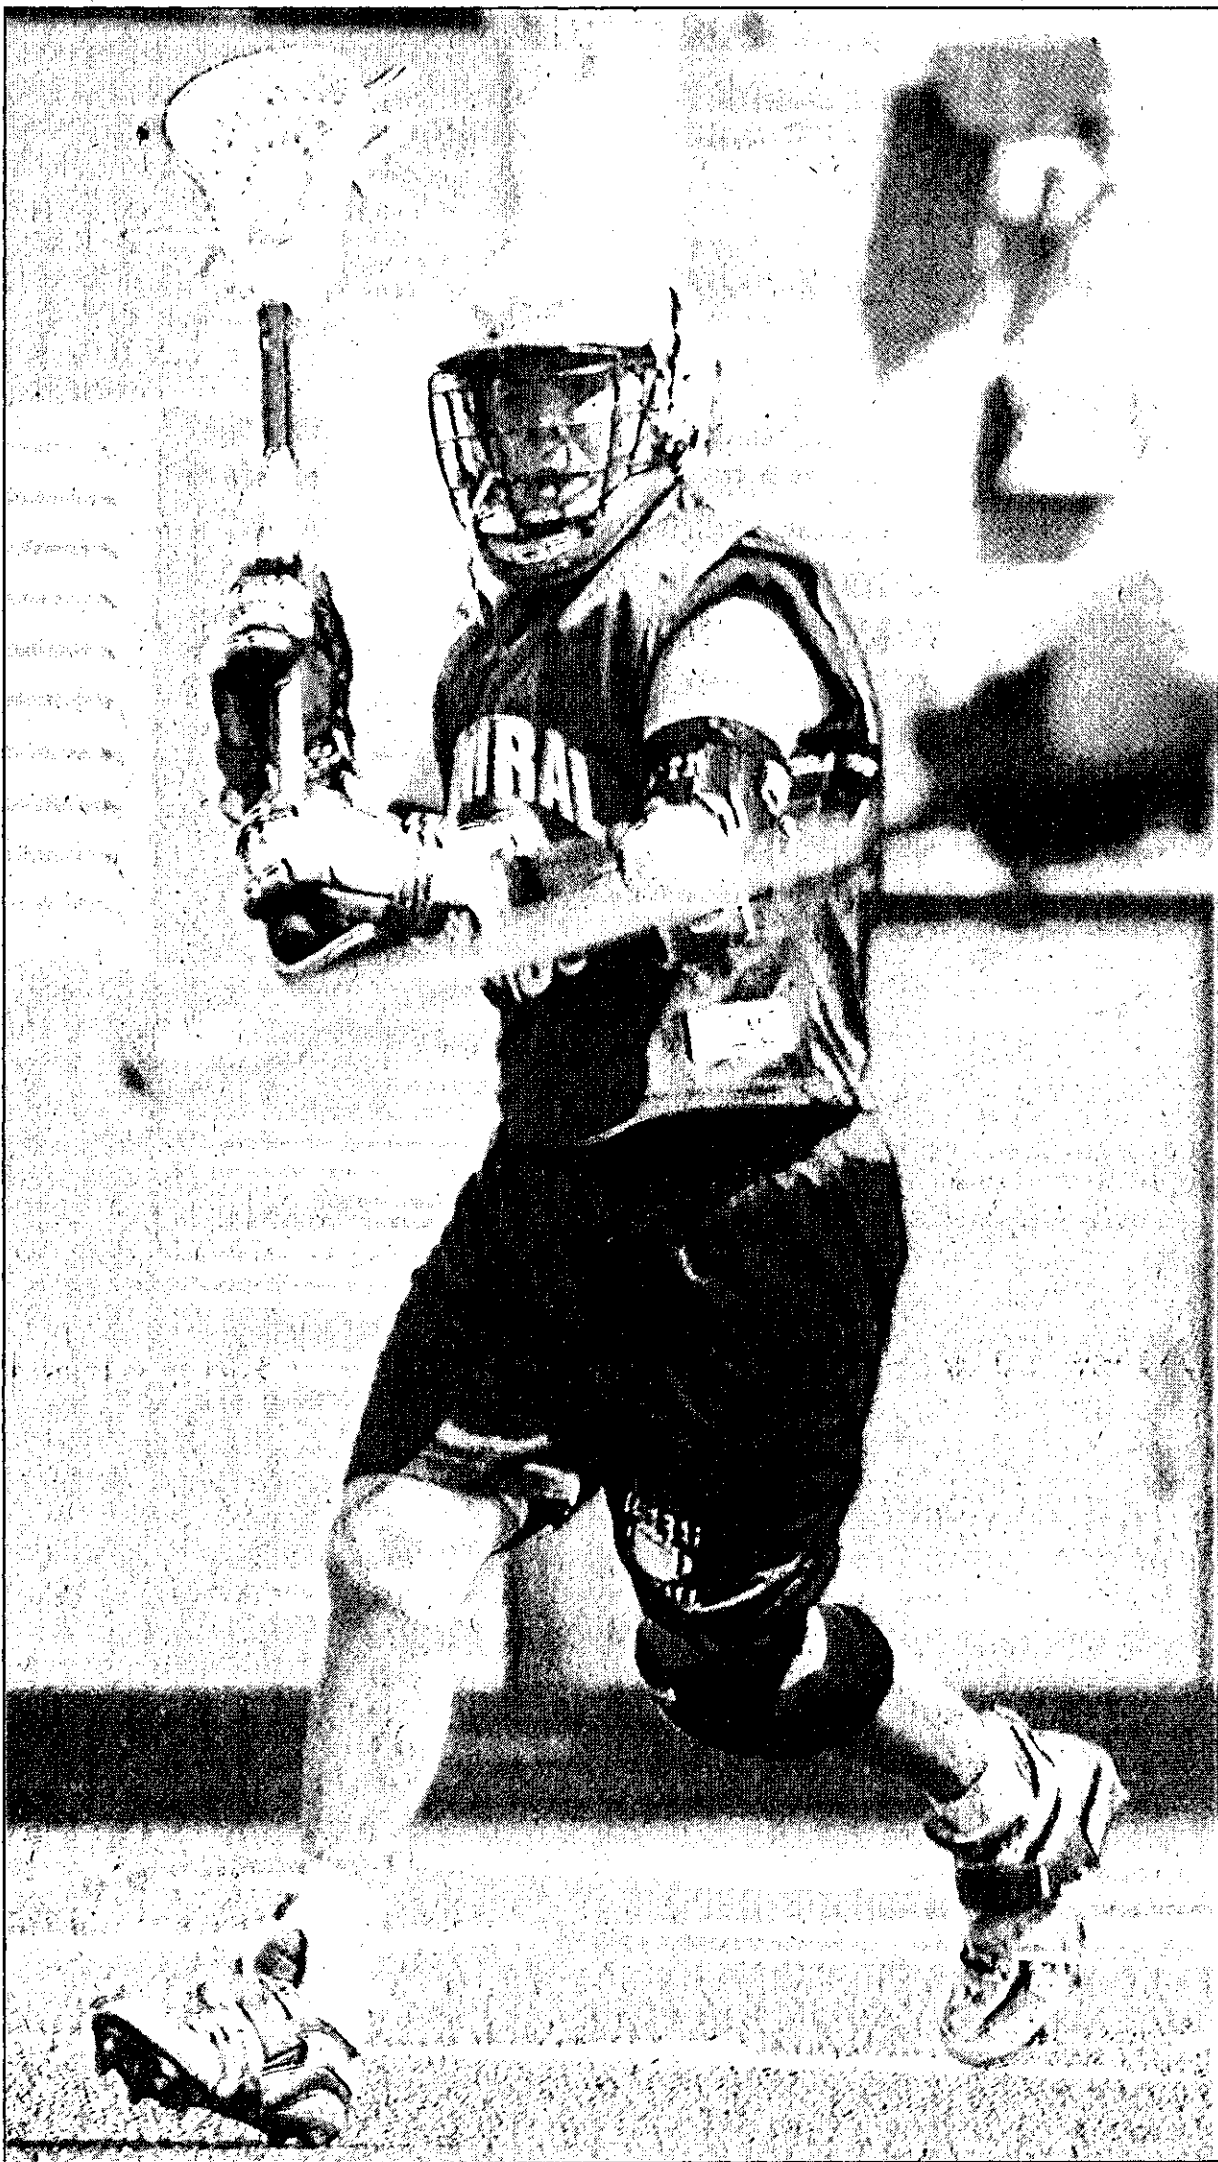

These three qualified for state along with Jon Donnowitz of Warren. Donnowitz lost the third-place match to Grant Gordon of Lake Forest.

Another qualifier are the doubles team of Charlie Scupham and Justin Shea from Lakes. The duo lost in the third-place match to E.J. Silver and Conor Kester of Lake Forest.

With the state finals coming up, let's cheer on our Lake County players.

Emerging popularity

Grayslake Central High School senior midfielder Michael Rouillard looks to throw the ball during lacrosse practice May 19. The Grayslake boys lacrosse program became associated with the school in 2004 and was named an official sport in 2005. Between the two Grayslake schools there are 140 lacrosse players.

Lacrosse teams continue to grow

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE - When it comes to spring sports, many people think baseball, softball, track, boys tennis and girls soccer. But at schools like Grayslake Central, Grayslake North and Warren, lacrosse is another sport that gets thrown in the mix.

Perhaps the reason why more schools in the Lake County Journals coverage area don't have lacrosse programs is because the sport is not sanctioned by the Illinois High School Association.

Howard Kravets, coach of Grayslake Central's varsity boys lacrosse team, said that lacrosse was labeled as an emerging sport by the IHSA.

According to www.ihsa.org, "Any sport for which IHSA does not conduct a state tournament series and which a member school elects to sponsor as either a sport under the auspices of its athletic administration or as a club or other informal sports activity shall be considered an emerging sport."

But the schools do belong to an association that allows them to be competitive - the Illinois High School Lacrosse Association.

According to www.ihsa.org, there are 56 schools that have boys lacrosse programs.

"It just keeps growing," Kravets said.

The IHSLA divides programs into two classes, Class A and Class B. Warren, Grayslake Central and North are all in Class B.

Kravets said classes were based more on how long the program had been going, not the size of the school.

He added that a certain number of schools needed to have programs in order for lacrosse to become an IHSA sport.

Given the growth he has seen, Kravets expects the sport to be part of the IHSA by 2009 or 2010.

"It's the hottest new sport in the Midwest," he said.

When it comes to Grayslake Central and North, it looks like Kravets is right. In 2003, Grayslake Community High School had 37 students playing lacrosse. This season, between Grayslake Central and North there are 140 boys lacrosse players.

Kravets took over the program in 2002, when it wasn't even associated with the school. He was approached by a student of his named Jim Starwalt. Starwalt mentioned that the program needed a coach, and even though Kravets had never coached lacrosse before, he took the job.

"The chance to start something new enticed me," Kravets said.

Round Lake baseball coach strives to improve

By MATT DOUTHETT

mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com

Amanda Schwengel - aschwengel@nwnewsgroup.com
Round Lake High School baseball coach Fred Colon leads practice May 19. This is Colon's first-year coaching at Round Lake.

ROUND LAKE – As a private investigator, Fred Colon is used to figuring things out.

He doesn't worry when he takes the reins of an unsuccessful team in a rebuilding stage. In fact, he relishes in it.

"I love the challenge; It's like taking a puzzle and putting all the pieces together," he said. "You have to find kids for your program and then figure out where to put them and where they can get the job done. I love it."

Colon, an Antioch resident, is the first-year coach of Round Lake's baseball team. The program hasn't seen much recent success, going 3-25 last season. The team has increased its win total by three this season and, Colon said, he sees continued improvement. They had to contend with bad weather to start the season, and the players were unable to get the practice they needed on the field.

"I think if the weather would have been better, the team would have had a much better chance at improving even more," Colon said. "You have to play in your own element – and that's out on the field. We didn't have that opportunity because of all the snow and rain."

Colon, 54, is no stranger to rebuilding programs, either. He was the coach of Antioch's softball team the past two years. He's taking the

When I came into Round Lake, my attitude was that we're going to teach the kids how to crawl, how to walk, and then let them run.

Fred Colon

same approach with Round Lake's baseball team.

"Antioch's softball program was at the same level," he said. "When I came there, I had to take a step back and take a look at their program and see what had to be done. Two years in a row, they won conference. I've been able to step into schools and establish programs – it's just a lot of hard work is involved."

Colon has established himself as the coach, and he said he saw the great work ethic in his players.

"Everyone comes out and nobody ever misses a practice," he said. "When we had practices at 5:30 (a.m.) they were there at 5:15. That is impressive enough that they showed up early before a long day of school. I was really pleased with them coming out and doing that."

Colon said he was taking it slow and gradual in hopes that the team will have continued improvement.

"I love taking a team of 16 kids and giving them instructions and see them progress out there on the field," he said. "When I came into Round Lake, my attitude was that we're going to teach the kids how to crawl, how to walk, and then let them run."

That philosophy has worked so far, as the team posted a huge 3-2 win last week over Libertyville.

"Libertyville is a ranked team, so that was a feather in the cap," Colon said. "We were down 2-1, but our kids fought back and we ended up winning. We played fundamental baseball without any errors, and that's a big step toward the future."

Colon sees nothing but continued improvement for his team in the future.

"In the coming years I believe we'll have a viable program," he said. "Out of our 16 kids, only five are seniors this year. The rest are freshman, sophomores and juniors."

"They all got to see what the varsity level is like and got a chance to play, and next year they're not going to be afraid," Colon said. "They're just going to step up and take care of business."

Real story on dam restrictions

It's become fashionable to bash the Illinois Department of Natural Resources. It's an unfair thing to do.

The employees of the IDNR are hard working and professional from top to bottom.

The reason the IDNR gets a bad rap is for things that they have no control over.

Sam Flood has been acting director since Joel Brunsold stepped down in December of 2005.

Why Gov. Rod Blagojevich has not been able to come up with someone capable of handling the position on a permanent basis in two-and-a-half years is beyond me.

The IDNR budget has been cut drastically by the present administration over the past few years causing some sad situations. But again, this is not something that the IDNR can do anything about.

Still the IDNR gets made the target of bad jokes and fodder for the outraged writings of columnists and editors throughout the state of Illinois. I admit to being in that crowd on occasion.

Chris McCloud, spokesman for the IDNR called to politely straighten me out on a point or two (or three) regarding my recent story on new dam restrictions at 32 sites in the state.

Actually, this is how the process will unfold.

The restrictions are being studied by committee in an internal review process.

They can add comments and make changes to the restrictions.

Once the committee finalizes its decision, they'll publicly post the information in a newspaper.

There is then a 45-day period for the public to submit comments and concerns.

Although not required, the IDNR is going to have an open public hearing on this dam subject because it is such a hot-button issue.

Then, and only then, will

the dam distance restrictions go into law.

By the way, if you responded to the IDNR at my request, you will have to do it again when the 45-day open period begins. Comments received prior to that time, can't be considered.

Now let's move onto something more positive. Kudos go out to the IDNR and Blagojevich.

It was announced that just a hair under a billion dollars has been dispensed in grants to create or improve trails in eight Illinois counties. The Federal Government's Recreational Trails Program, provides up to 80 percent of the cost of the trail projects.

The northern portion of our state was treated very kindly in the dispensing of the grants.

The following are some of those projects: A one-mile equestrian/hiking trail in Des Plaines; a 1.8-mile limestone screenings nature trail in Glenview; a signage project in Highland Park's Heller Nature Center; 3.5-miles of equestrian/hiking trail and a horse shelter and campground at Burnidge Forest Preserve in Kane County; a signage project along the DuPage River; a nature trail and an interpretive shelter in Yorkville in Kendall County.

One of the most memorable outdoors experiences I had last year did not involve catching a fish. It was when I volunteered to help the Northrop-Grumman Anglers Fishing Club stage a day of fishing and fun for 50 residents of Clearbrook Center.

The guests were all adults suffering from mental and behavioral disorders. There are plenty of people offering to help kids with these disabilities, but sadly, the adults are forgotten.

In all sincerity, the feeling of satisfaction I got from volunteering was surpassed by the warm memories I will always hold dear that I collected that afternoon.

The club is looking, no, they are begging for assistance this year. The event is at the Harper College pond in Palatine at Route 72 and Roselle Road on Friday, June 6. You are needed for only three hours, from 4:30 to 7:30.

It is a great cause and I know that if you volunteer, you will be glad that you participated. To volunteer or for more information, call Bob Behrendt at 847-259-9600 ext. 6320 or by e-mail at robert.behrendt@ngc.com. I hope to see you there.

Here is something really cool!

A family of eagles is nesting at Coffeen Lake State Fish and Wildlife area, near the Ameren Energy Generating Company's Coffeen Power Station. The IDNR has installed a live-feed camera, thanks to a donation from Ameren, that will let anyone with Internet access take an up-close-and-personal look at these magnificent birds in their natural surroundings.

The "eagle cam" is turned on daily from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. Please access Ameren's website at www.ameren.com and following the links to the live eagle cam.

Northwest News Group outdoors columnist Steve Sarley's radio show, "The Outdoors Experience," airs live from 8-9 a.m. Saturdays on AM-560. Sarley also runs a Web site for outdoors enthusiasts, OExperience.com. He can be reached by e-mail at sarfishing@yahoo.com.

Rely On L. Hernandez For All Your Landscaping Needs

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

With spring in full bloom, you can rely on L. Hernandez Landscaping & Nursery to beautify and maintain your outdoor living areas. This family run business has over 13 years experience serving customers' needs.

Visit their full service garden center for a complete selection of annuals, perennials, trees, shrubs, and landscaping materials. Owner Leo Hernandez said they grow their own perennials in their five-acre nursery to provide the customer with quality plant material at an affordable price. And now is the time to order their premium, hardwood mulch, topsoil, or landscape brick and stone for those summer projects.

Consult with their professional landscaper or experienced staff for advice on how to turn your backyard into the envy of the neighborhood. Or trust L. Hernandez to keep your landscape in top shape by performing a thorough spring clean up, applying mulch, planting, pruning and trimming, or providing weekly lawn maintenance.

Leo said he always inspects a customer's entire property looking for any problem areas they can remedy. He said this is why his customers stay with the company, and why he often receives letters praising their work. For example, Hernandez said customers have told him that their houses sold within days of having his crew come in and spruce up their landscapes. "It's not unusual to add $5,000 to the value of your home when you create a neat, inviting landscape," he said.

Hernandez urged customers to visit his garden center often because, "we always have special deals." Right now they are offering 50% off spring blooming plants, and Leo said they are willing to negotiate on quantity purchases.

Leo Hernandez said he is proud of the trust he's gained with his customers, along with being a United States citizen for 27 years and having a son in the Armed Forces. He looks forward to gaining your trust.
